NEW QUESTION: 1

You have a specialization rule for the concurrent manager as given below:

Include Oracle ID Oracle Purchasing

Exclude Request Type Oracle Purchasing Month End Rep

Which statement is true about this rule?

- A. Manager reads requests for all Oracle IDs and Oracle Purchasing programs but fails to read thatof Requesttypes.
- B. Managerreads requests for all programs assigned to Oracle Purchasing except programs definedwith the Month-End Rep request type.
- C. Manager reads requests for allRequesttypes except Oracle Purchasing and Month-End Rep.
- D. Manager does not read requests for Oracle Purchasing because itis assigned in Include andExclude.

Answer: B

Explanation:

A combined specialization rule combines more than one action to generate a single rule. The actions are combined as AND statements so that the rule is defined as:

Action 1 AND . . .

Action 2 AND . . .

Action 3 AND . . . so on.

You can create combined rules and use them with several managers, instead of duplicating a complex rule each time.

There are two kinds of Actions you may use to build a combined rule; Exclude and Include. Each action is defined by one line within the rule. Combining the specialization lines or individual actions defines the overall combined rule.

An Exclude action overrides a Include action.
