NEW QUESTION: 1

A well-known retailer has experienced a massive credit card breach. The retailer had gone through an audit and had been presented with a potential problem on their network. Vendors were authenticating directly to the retailer's AD servers, and an improper firewall rule allowed pivoting from the AD server to the DMZ where credit card servers were kept. The firewall rule was needed for an internal application that was developed, which presents risk. The retailer determined that because the vendors were required to have site to site VPN's no other security action was taken.

To prove to the retailer the monetary value of this risk, which of the following type of calculations is needed?

- A. Residual Risk calculation
- B. A cost/benefit analysis
- C. Qualitative Risk Analysis
- D. Quantitative Risk Analysis

Answer: D

NEW QUESTION: 2

Note: This question is part of a series of questions that present the same scenario. Each question in the series contains a unique solution that might meet the stated goals. Some question sets might have more than one correct solution, while others might not have a correct solution.

After you answer a question in this section, you will NOT be able to return to it. As a result, these questions will not appear in the review screen.

You plan to store delimited text files in an Azure Data Lake Storage account that will be organized into department folders.

You need to configure data access so that users see only the files in their respective department folder.

Solution: From the storage account, you disable a hierarchical namespace, and you use access control lists (ACLs).

Does this meet the goal?

A. No

B. Yes

Answer: B

Explanation:

Azure Data Lake Storage implements an access control model that derives from HDFS, which in turn derives from the POSIX access control model.

Blob container ACLs does not support the hierarchical namespace, so it must be disabled.
