NEW QUESTION: 3

Qualitative loss resulting from the business interruption does NOT usually include:

A. Loss of public confidence and credibility

B. Loss of market leadership

C. Loss of revenue

D. Loss of competitive advantage or market share

Answer: C

Explanation:

This question is testing your ability to evaluate whether items on the list are Qualitative or Quantitative. All of the items listed were Qualitative except Lost of Revenue which is Quantitative.

Those are mainly two approaches to risk analysis, see a description of each below:

A quantitative risk analysis is used to assign monetary and numeric values to all elements of the risk analysis process. Each element within the analysis (asset value, threat frequency, severity of vulnerability, impact damage, safeguard costs, safeguard effectiveness, uncertainty, and probability items) is quantified and entered into equations to determine total and residual risks. It is more of a scientific or mathematical approach to risk analysis compared to qualitative.

A qualitative risk analysis uses a "softer" approach to the data elements of a risk analysis . It does not quantify that data, which means that it does not assign numeric values to the data so that they can be used in equations.

Qualitative and quantitative impact information should be gathered and then properly analyzed and interpreted. The goal is to see exactly how a business will be affected by different threats.

The effects can be economical, operational, or both. Upon completion of the data analysis, it should be reviewed with the most knowledgeable people within the company to ensure that the findings are appropriate and that it describes the real risks and impacts the organization faces. This will help flush out any additional data points not originally obtained and will give a fuller understanding of all the possible business impacts.

Loss criteria must be applied to the individual threats that were identified. The criteria may include the following:

Loss in reputation and public confidence

Loss of competitive advantages

Increase in operational expenses

Violations of contract agreements

Violations of legal and regulatory requirements

Delayed income costs

Loss in revenue

Loss in productivity
