NEW QUESTION: 2

How does identity as a service (IDaaS) provide an easy mechanism for integrating identity service into individual applications with minimal development effort?

- A. By integrating internal provisioning procedures with external authentication processes
- B. By keeping all user information in easily accessible cloud repositories
- C. By allowing for internal provisioning of user accounts
- D. By allowing the identification logic and storage of an identity's attributes to be maintained externally

Answer: B

NEW QUESTION: 3

When personal information is transmitted across networks, there MUST be adequate controls over:

- A. change management.
- B. consent to data transfer.
- C. encryption devices.
- D. privacy protection.

Answer: D

Explanation:

Privacy protection is necessary to ensure that the receiving party has the appropriate level of protection of personal data. Change management primarily protects only the information, not the privacy of the individuals. Consent is one of the protections that is frequently, but not always, required. Encryption is a method of achieving the actual control, but controls over the devices may not ensure adequate privacy protection and, therefore, is a partial answer.
